

Postgraduate Research Scholarship

Monash University Malaysia – Department of Psychology

Jeffrey Cheah School of Medicine and Health Sciences

Monash University Malaysia is one of the international campuses of Monash University Australia that has five local campuses throughout Victoria and international centres in the People's Republic of China, Italy and India. Monash University Malaysia provides a distinctive international experience, with excellence in teaching and research. It engages with Malaysian and regional societies to improve the human condition. The campus is a dynamic community of scholars comprising staff and students, supported by collegial processes and comprehensive first-class infrastructure, and aspiring to intellectual achievement of the highest order.

We are seeking expressions of interest for a postgraduate student at the Master level who has an excellent academic background with the potential for future achievement. The successful candidate will be involved in a project on fatigue and road safety conducted by a team of academics in the Department of Psychology at Monash University Malaysia and the School of Psychological Science at Monash University Australia. The project, funded by Shell, aims to investigate the impact of a fatigue detection device on driver behavior and safety in a real-world setting. To assess the applicability of the device in the driver population, quantitative and qualitative fatigue and sleep data relating to participating professional drivers will be collected.

The applicant should have completed a Bachelor degree with Honours either in psychology or related science discipline, with experience in experimental work and data analysis. The candidate should also be bi-lingual in Bahasa Melayu (Malay) and English, and have excellent communication and writing skill, with clear promise to work in a team.

Once awarded, the student will receive a scholarship that includes:

- full tuition fee waiver for two years (full-time)
- a stipend for 24 months (subject to satisfactory progression)

Interested candidates are requested to send their CV with a forwarding letter to Associate Professor Shamsul Haque over email (shamsul@monash.edu)