“ The Monash Health Economics Workshop, organised by the School of Pharmacy, Monash University Malaysia, and the Pharmaceutical Association of Malaysia (PhAMA), is designed for those involved in initiating, undertaking, managing or interpreting economic evaluations within pharmaceutical and medical device organisations, clinical and health services research, and health care decision-making. Decision-makers' demands for information on the cost-effectiveness of health technologies have become more extensive and sophisticated. In Malaysia, formal submissions of economic data have become a requirement as part of the submission of dossier for listing into the Ministry of Health Medicines Formulary.

To keep up with the constantly changing health care landscape, the Monash Health Economics Workshop is tailored to ensure its continued competitive edge in delivering the most contemporary training to its participants. This Workshop covers detailed discussion of the analytic approaches required to support decisions, using a mixture of presentations, tutored sessions and practical exercises.
